This is a long explanation, but we are so anxious to do anything we possibly can to help prove Mr. Stevens' account of the way he spent that evening.

It certainly is the most cruel, groundless accusation ever brought against a good man.

I enclose a letter which Elaine wrote soon after they went up to college in which she refers to the matter. You will see that she was all keyed up over the injustice and Alice has been, also.

By the way, they are to be down for the week-end. Alice wrote that she must see one or two more musical comedies before going on with
